Fashion & Function

The kitchen in this contemporary lakefront home eschews classic for creativity. by ABBY BIELAGUS

Going beyond a more traditional approach, this kitchen pairs warm wood on the lower cabinetry with metal and glass above. The contrast gives the space a distinctive character while still feeling connected to the adjoining living and dining spaces and the home's larger architectural and interior design. The palette is rooted in contrast; clean, modern lines balance warm, natural materials such as white oak and marble, hand-cut tile, metal and glass. Instead of relying heavily on color, the materiality creates depth, texture and interest. Oversized double islands finished in Calacatta Macchia Vecchia Italian marble, honed by Cumar (cumar.com), anchor the space and support cooking and gathering for large festive groups or everyday life. Hanging overhead are oversized handblown glass pendants with a black finish. A custom Lacanche (frenchranges.com) range is complemented by a handcrafted stainless-steel-and-brass hood and matching custom metal cabinetry. Expansive windows fill the space with natural light and celebrate the water views outside. A generous custom pantry and additional storage are just beyond, and the appliances are integrated, ensuring the room is visually clean. The space is timeless, elevated, prioritizing beauty as well as function.

The warm wood on the lower cabinetry with metal and glass above helps the kitchen feel connected to the adjoining living and dining areas. Opposite page: Double islands anchor the kitchen and easily accommodate both large groups and the family's everyday living.
